One of the most complete SEO wordpress plugins. A web page or blog contains not only articles and text pages. It is also very common to include documents that can be downloaded. This could be Excel with a price list, Word or PDF that contains a catalog, report, or digital book and much more. If you want to install downloadable files on a web page, the Monitor Download plugin is ideal for managing these downloads. This is the one I used for 2 years in Digital Adventure to manage the download of PDF books that we give and I am more than satisfied with its power and features. Download considerations Before talking about the plugin I want to be clear about some issues about downloading files from the website. Chances are that your website is installed on a shared server and that you have certain storage capabilities and monthly broadband. Therefore, you should be aware that downloading very large files should not be done directly from your website, because it would quickly exceed the limits of the service you have ordered, and this too would affect the overall functioning of the website. Some time ago I explained that it refers to posting videos on your page, an article that I recommend reading, because the aspects I deal with are the same aspects that apply to file transfer. Where to host your files to download If you offer to download large files, or not so large, but you estimate that they will be downloaded by a large number of people, ideally upload them to a service such as Dropbox or the like and share a link to download so that you download it directly from there, without affecting your hosting account at all. If instead of what you hang, it is properly compressed PDF (say about 200 or 300Kb), and that will download a moderate number of people (say about 20 or 30 daily) manage them directly from WordPress with the Download plugin Monitora.To is a feature of the digital book 31 Plugins to Sweep with WordPress, but this is managed with a plugin-om. To compress your PDFs, and make them easier to file without losing quality, I recommend Compress PDF, a very simple online service to use. Just upload the file compresses it and then transfers to an already optimized size. The simplest option to transfer documents from your PagesLooor, which we first mean to hang documents on our website, is to upload them to the WordPress media library and then link them to the page or posts where we want to download them, but it has two important limitations: If you need to one day update any of these documents (something very common in the catalog or price list) you will need to reconnect the file to all locations on which you had it. And we don't even talk if you have links to other websites, it won't be easy for you to get the relevant webmasters to do it. You don't have any information about the number of downloads each document would have to know which, for example, are more interesting than others. Download Monitor plug-in instead solves these two things very well. Download Monitor plugin featuresE are the main features of Download Monitor: You can add, modify and delete downloads from the same WordPress interface. Save files to the WordPress Media Library and therefore to your hosting account. This allows you to update the version of the file without having to change the download url, something very useful if you have this associated with multiple sites. It provides you with a statistical module on the WordPress desktop with the number of downloads made to each file. Create categories and tags to organize downloads. This is useful if you have many. You can only enable downloads for registered users or anyone. Allows you to choose whether the download connection uses the download connection name or only the ID (most anonymous). Video tutorial Download Monitor in Spanish In the next video I show you how easy it is to insert a document that needs to be downloaded with Download Monitor and we review all its features. I recommend that you place the video on a full screen and select HD resolution. To subscribe to the YouTube channel click here. How to fix an error Page not found in Download Monitor Some time ago I wrote a blog reader a little oversupoid. It turned out that he was trying to download one of the books we gave and as he told me when he clicked on the download link instead of opening the file to save it, there was an error that said the Page was not found. At first I thought it was going to be a problem with him, that he was going to do something wrong, or that he was confused as a liaison. So I went straight to try to confirm and, to my surprise, I also got the same mistake. I didn't understand what was going on... If it worked perfectly until a few days ago, would we be hacked? In a digital adventure to manage document downloads, we use the Document Transfer Management plug-in. So, the first thing I could think of was to go in there and see if they were still wordPress or if they were deleted intentionally or by accident. And no. The downloads were there as usual, no one deleted them. But if I clicked on any of them, I'd get a damn page error that wasn't found again... The other thing was to go to the WordPress Media Library to see if pdf books (files) were still there. The downloads may still be set up, but someone deleted the files. Everything was fine again. But that, far from being good news, meant I have no idea where the problem is now and how to solve it as soon as possible. I did a Google search and found more search in English forums than other people who also encountered an error page did not find when trying to download documents with Download Monitor, but apparently no one had an answer. Until, after a little sailing, I found a solution, or at least one possible solution that served me greatly. And it came from the plugin developer himself. In the next video, I show you how to save him. But I'm already in front of you to stay calm, the solution is very simple, very simple. To subscribe to the YouTube channel click here.
